GIADA'S NEW MAN

De Laurentiis (in NYC in August) and Farley made out at a Nick Jonas concert in Las Vegas Aug. 1.

Farley (in 2012) won four Daytime Emmys for producing.

The secret ingredient to Giada de Laurentiis' newfound happiness is TV producer Shane Farley. The Food Network chef, 45 — who split from husband of 11 years Todd Thompson in 2014 — has been dating the FabLife exec, 43, since August, sources tell Us. "She seems very comfortable around him," says an insider who saw them hand in hand at an L.A. party October 31. "She was feeding him appetizers!" The mom of Jade, 7, was less willing to dish on The Wendy Williams Show November 4. When asked if she has a boyfriend, the L.A.-based de Laurentiis, who worked with Farley on a failed series in 2013, replied: "I'm going to say kind of."

HOT WATER One woman was surprised to hear it. Farley's estranged wife of 15 years, NYC trainer Jennifer Giamo, 44, "was devastated" to learn of the coupling, her lawyer Barry S. Guaglardi tells Us. De Laurentiis, however, isn't fazed by Farley's messy split (he filed for divorce March 30). "Giada's friends have hung out with Shane many times," says the insider. "They act like they've been together forever."

ROBIN MARCHANT/GETTY IMAGES; NEIL RASMUS/BFANYC/SIPA USA (INSET)

Gomez and Krost (in NYC Nov. 9) "run in the same friendship circle," says the source.

SELENA'S HOT DINNER DATE!

Lately, all roads lead back to Gigi Hadid. The model's friends Selena Gomez and Samuel Krost, a 22-year-old New York University alum and sales executive for Onia swimwear, held hands over dinner at NYC's Cipriani November 9. "Selena was being flirty," says a source close to 23-year-old Gomez, who also sat on Krost's lap. "She loves the attention of a guy."

Party of one But that's all her heart wants. The "Same Old Love" singer — who ended a three-year, on-off relationship with Justin Bieber, 21, in 2013 — "isn't interested in having a boyfriend," adds the insider. Indeed, the Texas native told reporters at the Victoria's Secret Fashion Show November 10 she's "definitely single," but dating "a little bit." One topic was off-limits: "She is over talking about Justin," says the source. "Super over it."

The two had a meal in NYC Nov. 9 after she attended a Glamour event.

Breakups to Make-Ups

These long-term loves contested their own splits!

DENNIS QUAID & KIMBERLY BUFFINGTON-QUAID

Despite dueling divorce filings (the former realtor, 44, petitioned in 2012; the actor, 61, followed suit months later), the couple are still playing for keeps.

MICHAEL DOUGLAS & CATHERINE ZETA-JONES

His cancer battle and her bipolar disorder tested their union. But a brief 2013 split left the Oscar winner, 71, and actress, 46 (who have two kids), "stronger than ever," he said.

BILLY RAY & TISH CYRUS

The 54-year-old father of six's (achy-breaky) heart hurt in 2010 when he filed for divorce — and again in 2013 when his wife, 48, did. Their salvation: couples therapy.

PATRICK & JILLIAN DEMPSEY

January ushered in legal action to end the 15-year marriage. Yet the star and the makeup artist, both 49, held hands in Paris November 8. Says a source, "They're giving it another go."

WHAT'S IN MY BAG?

Lori Loughlin, 51, shows Us the essentials she houses in her full tote

The Northpole: Open for Christmas star slings on a trusty Louis Vuitton sack. "I bought it when my kids were little," says the mom of Olivia, 16, and Isabella, 17, with fashion entrepreneur Mossimo Giannulli, 52. The NYC native, whose Hallmark movie airs November 21 at 8 P.M., lists the (entirely nice) contents.

IN PLAIN SIGHT

"When my girls were babies, I had pacifiers all over the house. Now that I've gotten older, I can't see as well, so I've got drugstore readers everywhere instead."

HUNGER STRIKE

"Kind Bars are my favorite. I love the dark chocolate with nuts and sea salt. It's great in a pinch or on the run so I don't have to eat my arm!"

GOOD TO GLOW

"I love Laura Mercier's tinted moisturizer with SPF. If I'm out and about and need a touch-up or have circles under my eyes, it gives me just a tiny bit of coverage to even out my skin tone."

COFFEE BREAK

"I go to Starbucks all the time and use gift cards. My drink is a grande single shot latte. Not superfancy — I like a lot of milk because I don't like it too strong."

FAST TRACKING

"My favorite app on my iPhone 6 is Find My Friends — because I can check and see where my kids are!"

25 Things You Don't Know About Me

The star of the new drama Agent X uncrosses her life for Us

Agent X airs on TNT Sundays at 9 P.M.

1. I've worn glasses since I was 5 years old.
2. The scar on my neck is from being taken under a clothesline while riding a horse. It was back in Pennsylvania when I was 14. My mom [Dorothy, 82] saved my life.
3. I am a chocoholic. Dark only.
4. I write lyrics. An album I wrote for [Transformación] won album of the year in South America. I don't think it was because of my song.
5. I live in gratitude.
6. Cards Against Humanity is our family game and my mom wins every time.
7. The Grinder with Rob Lowe is my newest favorite TV show.
8. I have three boys [Roan, 15, Laird, 10, and Quinn, 9].
9. We have a cat, a Snowshoe breed that actually meows "Mom" when he wants my attention.
10. We also have a dog, a French bulldog who is a comedian. He literally was that little puppy in the window.

11. We have a swimming pool/barbecue party at least once a week at home, with family and all of our friends. We play pool basketball.

12. Happiness is my discipline. It's harder than you think.
13. I dance my little heart out when I am home alone. It's a happy little party.

14. I sleep with a teddy bear.

15. I really get into mixing my own paint colors for the walls of my house.

16. I also redecorate my house and all of my family's houses. Whether they like it or not.
17. I am a stroke and brain hemorrhage survivor.
18. I read at least three books a week — more when I travel.
19. I love to bake. Mom taught me — she's a killer cook.
20. If I hadn't been an actress, I would've studied law.

21. French fries are my go-to. I've never met a potato I don't like.

22. I binge-watch foreign television series.
23. I'm learning to play the harmonica.
24. I also take singing lessons from a woman whose flier I tore off a corkboard.
25. And I am trying to learn to speak Swedish. Nothing yet.

FEUD OF THE WEEK

REBEL VS THE KARDASHIANS

Rebel Wilson won't be silenced. The Pitch Perfect star, 35 — who said November 4 she refused to present with Kendall Jenner, 20, and sister Kylie, 18, at August's MTV VMAs because the Kardashian-Jenners are "not famous for talent. . . . I worked really hard" — accused the family rep November 11 of leading a "smear campaign" against her. Despite her apology flowers, Wilson tweeted, the clan are employing "behind the scenes intimidation tactics." The family, meanwhile, is confused. Says a source, "The girls feel Rebel's attack on the young sisters was strange. Kendall's a top model and Kylie's only 18. What grown woman attacks an 18-year-old?"

WHAT THE STARS SAID THIS WEEK

"When someone makes you insecure, it's strangely exhilarating because you keep trying to fight for that validation."
JENNIFER LAWRENCE

"Not to be corny, but it's true. So I constantly say that."
On telling wife Jennifer Aniston that she's beautiful,
JUSTIN THEROUX

"Go to any mall in America. You can find some crazy bitches."
On why all Real Housewives are replaceable,
BETHENNY FRANKEL

"I basically need to kiss some more boys so I can write some songs."
On taking time off,
SAM SMITH

"It's celestial, but it's also a great Chevy from the '70s."
On 13-month-old daughter Nova's name,
LAKE BELL

"I'm very forthcoming about my proclivity for martinis and a cigarette at a party once in a while, and french fries, and cheese."
On living a balanced life,
GWYNETH PALTROW

"I've been to the ER probably half a dozen times for flirting."
On injures, including a broken ankle, sustained while seeking attention,
ELIZABETH HURLEY

"She doesn't get the whole 'no cellphone' thing. She doesn't understand why the kids aren't talking on Facebook."
On a friend's daughter watching his 1998–2003 TV hit, Dawson's Creek,
JOSHUA JACKSON

"I'm not sure how anyone could hate on love but that's okay."
On getting body-shamed after her Empire sex scene,
GABOUREY SIDIBE

"'Brush your teeth! . . . Basketball is tomorrow! Get your violin!' I'm like an air-traffic controller."

BABY LOVE

The singer and Milan cheered on Piqué at the Catalan Football Federation awards Nov. 9 in Barcelona.

Recipe for Success

Becoming a mom of two forced Shakira to "reprioritize" her life, she admits. "I apply the same amount of dedication to being a mom as I do to my music," the two-time Grammy winner recently told Parents Latina. The Barcelona-based singer, 38, even brought sons Milan, 2, and Sasha, 10 months, to sessions with longtime trainer Anna Kaiser. "The kids would come and 'work out' on their mats next to us," Kaiser tells Us of the boys (left, dressed as Italian cartoon character Topo Gigio in an October 31 Instagram with their mom and soccer pro dad Gerard Piqué, 28). "It was so adeorable!" Shakira includes her brood in kitchen tasks too: "We made protein pancakes with the kids," says Kaiser. "They have a Mickey Mouse pancake maker!"

Jaime's Boy Talks a Mile a Minute

While other 2-year-olds are learning ABCs, Jaime King's son James Knight is mastering slang. "My friend taught him to say a string of words — OMG, LOL, selfie!" King, 36 (above, October 28), tells Us. "It was cute, but I was like, Oh, God." His language skills do impress her and director husband Kyle Newman, 39 (also parents of Leo Thames, 4 months). Shares King, "He picks up my vocabulary. He says serendipity!"

Pride of the Osbourne Family

Jack Osbourne once asked sister Kelly not to spoil Pearl, 3, and Andy, 5 months (with Dad, 30, in September). Though Jack is no longer as strict, Kelly, 31, tells Us: "I try to be good. I don't want to be tattled on, like, 'Daddy, you said I couldn't have this, but Auntie Kelly gave it to me!'"

A Night to Remember

Robert Pattinson only had eyes for fiancée FKA Twigs at the GO Campaign Gala November 12. When the 27-year-old singer took the stage to perform, "Rob was completely transfixed," says an observer. "His face lit up whenever he looked at her." Later, a beaming Twigs applauded when Pattinson, 29, bid $8,500 and won a Peruvian adventure for two. Adds a source close to the couple of one year, "They're so devoted to each other."

PHOEBE & RUBY
Finding Their Stride

Ruby Rose wastes no time. Just three months into dating Faircloth & Supply designer Phoebe Dahl, the Orange Is the New Black star, 29, hastily popped the question. "After she proposed, she said, 'Oh, I haven't told you I love you yet! I love you!'" reveals Dahl, 27. Since then, the couple of nearly two years have settled into a slower pace. "They just moved into a new place in L.A.," says a Dahl pal. "They're in no rush to get married."

TOM'S STILL SMITTEN

The secret to Tom Hanks and Rita Wilson's marriage is quite simple. "We just like each other," the Bridge of Spies actor, 59, told Us November 5 at L.A.'s Outfest Legacy Awards. "Life is one damn thing after another. It's much more pleasant to go home to someone you like." Twenty-seven years later, he still marvels at his luck. Jokes Hanks, "I can't believe she goes out with me!"

"We always make each other laugh," Wilson, 59 (in Berlin Nov. 13), has said.

Artist's Plea for Peace

Following horrific acts of terrorism in Paris, a simple image is uniting people around the world. Just hours after the November 13 attacks that left 129 people dead, French graphic designer Jean Jullien (inset) posted a drawing of the Eiffel Tower set within a peace sign. The symbol went on to rack up 1.3 million likes on Instagram in 24 hours. The artist tells Us he wanted to convey "solidarity, peace [and] hope," and adds the attention was unexpected. "I didn't do this to benefit from its exposure," says Jullien, who aims to license products that will benefit the French Red Cross. "If it helped people connect in a positive way, it did its job."

CHARLIE SHEEN

HIV Secret Revealed

The actor finally admits the whispers are true

Rumor management: After a tabloid outed him as HIV-positive, Charlie Sheen quickly brokered a tell-all with Today's Matt Lauer November 17. At presstime, the legendary partier, 50, who has admitted to injecting drugs and having sex with prostitutes, planned to confirm he's been suffering from the life-threatening immunodeficiency virus "for years," says an insider. Sheen, says the source, kept his secret by paying off people who threatened to expose his diagnosis. According to a second insider, the dad of five also demanded his exes' staffs sign nondisclosure agreements promising to keep quiet. One former girlfriend, porn star Bree Olson, 29, came forward as HIV-free on her blog November 13. (A source says ex-wives Denise Richards and Brooke Mueller also tested negative.) Still, Sheen could face potential lawsuits from sexual partners — including some big Hollywood names — who did not know about his status. Adds the source, "A lot of celebs are freaking out."

SCOTT DISICK

Seeking Forgiveness

Scott Disick is on a mea culpa tour. After checking out of a Malibu rehab center November 10, the 32-year-old, who is in an outpatient program, "has apologized to everyone," reveals a close source. His priority: winning back love of nine years Kourtney Kardashian. "He wants to be there for his family," says the insider.

Kardashian, 36, allowed her ex solo time with kids Mason, 5, Penelope, 3, and Reign, 11 months, November 11 and 13. That evening, the two attended their pastor Rich Wilkerson Jr.'s book party. A return to Keeping Up With the Kardashians is next on his wish list. Over sushi with Kris Jenner, 60, at Nobu in Malibu November 12, "he asked for a second chance," says the source. "He needs the money."

KIM KARDASHIAN

Changes Due Date

Christmas is coming early for Kim Kardashian! A source says the reality TV star — due to give birth to a boy around the December holiday — is now planning to get induced closer to Thanksgiving. "Kim's doctors want to get the baby out early because of her medical history," says the insider. In 2013, Kardashian, 35, was forced to deliver her daughter, North, now 2, five weeks early when her blood pressure spiked. This time, an ultrasound showed excess fluid in her placenta, a sign of gestational diabetes. Kardashian admits she's never felt the proverbial pregnancy glow. As she lamented November 13: "I just don't think pregnancy and me really agree with each other. . . . I hate it." Husband Kanye West, 38, does all he can to make her feel otherwise. "He sends flowers," says a pal of the rapper. "He'll drop everything to be with her."

Shelton (in 2013) is "superhappy," says a source.

BLAKE & GWEN REVENGE

"Gwen is so comfortable with Blake," says a source of Stefani (Jan. 20).

ROMANCE

Shelton and Stefani help each other move on from devastating splits — and show their exes what they're missing

BY SARAH GROSSBART

Gwen Stefani isn't above groveling. After wrapping her first season as a coach on NBC's The Voice last December, she pleaded with execs to sign her up for another round. "I was, like, on my hands and knees, begging them to let me come back. 'Please, I want to do it again! Please!' " the three-time Grammy winner admitted to Us at a November 10 taping of the hit singing competition. Now settled back into her red rotating chair beside Adam Levine, Blake Shelton and Pharrell Williams, she's keeping the boys on their toes. "I'm really, really, really excited," she said. "I think, generally, in my life I'm really excited. I feel so grateful for everything!"

Especially Shelton. Since ending her 13-year marriage to Gavin Rossdale in August — six months after allegedly discovering the Bush frontman, 50, was having a multi-year affair with their sons' nanny Mindy Mann — the 46-year-old has found a kindred spirit in her fellow coach. The rugged, 6-foot-5 Oklahoma-born country king had been coping with his own sudden split from wife of

From Flirty Friends to Flames in One Year

After a televised warm-up, the Voice mentors bring their relationship to a crescendo

NOVEMBER 2014

Two months after joining the show, she captions a pic with Shelton, "<3 him."

DECEMBER 2014

Stefani snaps a set shot of Shelton, who has gushed that she "is just an icon."

DECEMBER 2014

Behind-the-scenes hijinks! She calls the show "the funnest thing I've ever done."

four years Miranda Lambert, 32, after she refused to follow through on their plan to start a family, says a source. Shelton and the mom of Kingston, 9, Zuma, 7, and Apollo, 20 months, "have both been through horrible marriages and are bonding over that," explains a source close to Stefani. "The relationship is very new, but it's a lot of fun."

And should their ex-spouses catch sight of all that fun — or, say, read the November 4 statement Stefani's rep released to Us confirming their romance — that's a bonus. "Blake kind of wants to get back at Miranda," says a Voice insider. Stefani, who directed her team to release the statement hours before she and Shelton, 39, made their debut at a Country Music Association Awards bash, wouldn't mind delivering a little comeuppance of her own. "After everything Gavin has done," says a Stefani source, "she hopes he sees what he's missing." And who she's with: Shelton, a six-time Grammy nominee, has sold 7 million-plus records and racked up 17 No. 1 country singles. (As a solo artist, Rossdale has landed only one song — the 2008 ballad "Love Remains the Same" — in the Top 40.) Continues the source, "She's moved on with somebody better who is really good to her. Her being happy is the best revenge. And she deserves it."

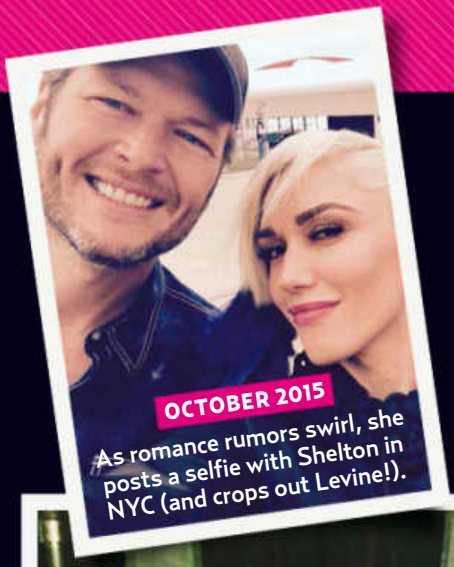

PUTTING ON A SHOW

Her euphoria is practically palpable on Monday and Tuesday nights. On The Voice's live November 9 episode, she giggled as her new man (who she's dubbed "a pretty rad guy") sang her praises. During Stefani's playoff round with Levine, Shelton proclaimed his girlfriend the winner: "Team Gwen, overall, is whipping the crap out of Team Adam tonight," he crowed. "It makes me so happy!" (From across the room, Stefani shot him a coy grin.) Shelton doesn't bother to hide his affection for the "Used to Love You" singer. As the five-time Country Music Association Male Vocalist of the Year declared to Us before the November 10 taping: "I'm pumped about having Gwen back."

At least one fan is enjoying watching their banter. While chatting with Us November 12 about Verizon's HopeLine campaign supporting domestic violence prevention, Voice coach Christina Aguilera — on hiatus for season 9 — said she approves of the coupling. "How could I not?" said the five-time Grammy winner. "I've known Gwen for a really long time, and Blake I know now from the show. And I know the two of them are both great people." As a fellow divorcée, Aguilera says she understands the pain of recovering from heartbreak. "I keep telling them both to stay strong and have fun," she told Us. "Divorce and life are hard enough! New-Relationship No-Nos

"It's very common to rebound from a breakup with someone who has also recently ended a relationship," says L.A.-based couples therapist Rhonda Richards-Smith. "Fellow rebounders will likely be more understanding and supportive as they heal." She makes the love connection for Us.

DO

- BE READY TO MOVE ON "Without giving yourself time to fully process your previous relationship, you may replicate the same problems in your next partnership," she explains.
- CHOOSE A PAL If you already know your partner, "developing a closeness on a romantic level can happen effortlessly," adds the pro. "Friendship provides the perfect foundation to build upon."
- KNOW YOURSELF "Reassess your own relationship priorities and deal-breakers," she says. "These can change over time."

DON'T

- MAKE COMPARISONS "Trying to change your current partner into your previous significant other won't work," she advises. "You won't succeed if you expect them to be someone they're not."
- GRIPE ABOUT YOUR EX "Bonding over challenges of a previous relationship can spell trouble if you allow this to dominate conversations," she says.
- MOVE TOO QUICKLY Says Richards-Smith, "Take it slow and don't feel the need to rush into a serious, long-term commitment if you're not ready."

someone who makes you happy, you gotta go for it. So they deserve it and they deserve to be happy."

Stefani hopes Rossdale is tuning in too. Though a source says the No Doubt singer was "completely devastated" by Rossdale's betrayal, she wants him to know she's already bouncing back. "It's good for Gavin to see that he couldn't destroy her," explains the source. "Deep down I'm sure she wants him to regret treating her so badly. He threw away a good thing."

THE EX FACTOR

Those close to Rossdale say he's well aware of his mistakes. With Australia native Mann, "he knows he was in the wrong," claims a source close to Rossdale. He is also coming to terms with what one source calls "monogamy struggles" throughout the couple's two-decade relationship, including an eight-month dalliance with Courtney Love in the '90s. Not to mention his trouble with truth-telling. Up until the moment a 2004 paternity test named him the father of his then 15-year-old goddaughter, model Daisy Lowe, a source says he insisted to Stefani that he never slept with her mom, Pearl. With all he's put Stefani through, says a Rossdale insider, he realizes he must be supportive of her decision to move on. "He thought it was a little weird that she announced the relationship," says a Rossdale insider, who adds that the exes communicate via text about the children. "But he knows he has no right to feel angry. She gave him many, many chances, so there's nothing he can say now."

As for Lambert, she's letting her social-media feed do the talking. In the days since the November 4 reveal, the country star has carefully cultivated her Instagram to create the image of a single girl reveling in her freedom (see box, below). On November 9, she posted snapshots of herself riding Sophie, a pony transformed into a unicorn with a fake horn and glitter paint. The next day — her 32nd birthday — she showed off a new double ear piercing. By November 11, she was revealing fresh ink: a faux tattoo of

A source says Rossdale (Nov. 15 in L.A.) replaced his wedding band with a ring from a friend.

Miranda's Wild Weekend

Smokin' and drinkin'! Lambert turned 32 November 10

"The morning after," she captioned a shot of a faux unicorn tattoo Nov. 11.

The singer called herself a "loser" while partying at Losers bar in Nashville Nov. 12.

"Diamonds are a girls best friend," she wrote of her piercing Nov. 10.

On Nov. 14, Mann strolled to a friend's car in L.A.

a unicorn. But her celebration that night at Nashville dive bar Losers was very real. Posting a photo from the outing, Lambert cheekily wrote, "I'm a loser baby."

She may have been going for a pun, but a source says the country queen hasn't exactly been feeling her best. The timing of Stefani and Shelton's relationship admission — mere hours before her yearly victory lap at the CMAs, where she collected her sixth straight Female Vocalist of the Year honors — stung. "She was annoyed at how they announced it and when," admits a Lambert source, "because it was on her big night." (A Stefani source counters that she wanted to get in front of press speculation: "They got it out of the way so they could enjoy the night.") Another insider says Lambert, who told the audience as she accepted her trophy that she needed a "bright spot," appeared upset backstage: "She came out halfway through the show with a highball glass full of whiskey and looked like she had been crying."

But a Lambert source insists she's since dried her tears. "She doesn't believe Blake cheated on her with Gwen and she really doesn't care," says the insider. "The marriage was really constraining for her. She wants to feel young and free again — she's just glad to have her life back."

HELLA GOOD

Shelton's country attitude, however, blends seamlessly with Stefani's rock 'n' roll persona, says a source. "With Blake, it's so easy for Gwen," adds the insider. "They just hang out and talk and talk all the time — that's mostly what they do. They bond over their work and the industry." Their messy pasts are also a frequent topic of conversation. "Gwen's confided in him about her marriage troubles and he's been a shoulder she can cry on, so to speak," says an insider of Shelton, who visited Stefani at her six-bedroom Beverly Hills home November 9. "He's a very nurturing, supportive guy anyway, so she found a good one." The other men in Stefani's life agree. The Shelton insider says the jokester has hung with Kingston, Zuma and Apollo on the NBC set. Says the Stefani source, "The kids think Blake is cool. Everyone is all for it."

But music's newest power couple are content to keep their romance at a slow tempo. "Who knows if it will last," notes the source. "But it's good for both of them right now." Particularly Stefani. "Gwen needs something easy and fun after years of living through hell with Gavin," says the source. "If this is a rebound, then good for her. She's living in the moment and enjoying it!" US

Mr. Right Now doesn't always stick around. Take it from these couples

John Mayer & Katy Perry
Admitting she was "depressed" after her bitter 2011 divorce from Russell Brand, the "Roar" singer sought laughs with Mayer. They began dating on and off in August 2012 — and parted three years later.

Jake Gyllenhaal & Reese Witherspoon
After filming 2007's thriller Rendition, Witherspoon (who had just split from husband Ryan Phillippe) and Gyllenhaal dated for two years. Later, the mom of three said she was focused on "just trying to feel better."

VICKI'S HUMILIATION

O.C. Housewife Gunvalson learns new truths about her ex's cancer claims

BY ERIC ANDERSSON

Vicki Gunvalson ignored the signs. On season 10 of Bravo's The Real Housewives of Orange County, her then-boyfriend, Brooks Ayers, claimed he had stage III non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, a blood cancer. But his fishy stories didn't add up: The smooth-talking Ayers blamed a flat tire twice for missing appointments with a renowned oncologist! Costars Tamra Judge, Meghan King Edmonds, Shannon Beador and Heather Dubrow were skeptical, but whenever anyone suggested Ayers might be dishonest, Gunvalson lashed out and pushed them away. "Satan is the author of confusion," she seethed on the October 12 episode. "I know the truth. And I will pray for everyone that's confused."

Now Gunvalson is the one who's confused — and disgraced. After Ayers, 48, showed paperwork he claimed was from City of Hope National Medical Center on E! November 10, a rep for the Duarte, California, facility denied he had received treatment there. Ayers then released a statement to the media admitting he'd faked the proof — but not his illness: "What I did was wrong and inexcusable, without Vicki's knowledge. . . . I never intended to disclose my actual medical records or details about my private and personal medical history, thus the rationalization of presenting documents that weren't true." His mea culpa only incensed Gunvalson, 53, who told Extra: "I hate him with everything in me. I believed him, I trusted him, I defended him, took a bullet for him." Her blind faith cost Gunvalson not

An allegedly ailing Ayers (in 2012) moved in with Gunvalson in 2014.

"I'm not in a good place," said Gunvalson (center, with Dubrow and host Andy Cohen) on the Nov. 1 reunion special.

With reporting by Brody Brown

only her dignity, but also her friendships. "None of the other women are speaking to Vicki," says a show source. "They feel they are all owed an apology."

> "I'M A FIXER, SO I'M THINKING, WHEN BROOKS TOLD ME, HOW DO YOU FIX CANCER? I DON'T HAVE A LOT OF KNOWLEDGE."
> GUNVALSON TO US IN 2014

VICKI UNDER FIRE

The Housewives stars also want Gunvalson to admit she covered for Ayers. "My original thought was that he told her he had cancer so that she would stay with him, and at some point she figured out it wasn't true. But then she made the decision to keep the lie going," Judge told E! News November 10. Adds the show source, "The women think Vicki is doing damage control. She really messed up."

Gunvalson maintains she had no part in any deception. "As God is my witness, I would never want to make something up like this; it's actually quite sick," she said. Still, she admits she began to have doubts about Ayers' condition this year. Certain moves he made — such as switching doctors midtreatment — raised her suspicions, but she ultimately brushed those concerns aside. "At the end of the day, I thought, That's his journey," says Gunvalson, who realizes now she should have listened to her friends: "I'm embarrassed."

But she's happy to have Ayers out of her life. The questions surrounding his illness are "a big part of why they broke up" in August, says the Gunvalson source. "Vicki stood by him for as long as she could, but she couldn't defend him anymore." US

YOLANDA'S DOUBTERS

Another Housewife, another hoax? On season 6 of The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills (premieres on Bravo December 1 at 9 P.M.), some of Yolanda Foster's costars debate whether she truly has Lyme disease. "I don't quite understand what's wrong with her," Lisa Vanderpump muses to the camera after she and Kyle Richards chat about Foster's condition. "I don't know if it is Lyme disease. . . . I'm just questioning it." To Foster, 51 (left), there's no doubt she's ill. "I have lost the ability to read, write or even watch TV," the mom of three said earlier this year. "It feels like someone came in and confiscated my brain."

BRO, BRO, BRO,

The Night Before's Joseph Gordon-Levitt, Seth Rogen and Anthony Mackie spice up the season for Us

Merry Christmas!

These three definitely made the naughty list! In The Night Before (in theaters November 20), Joseph Gordon-Levitt, 34, Seth Rogen, 33, and Anthony Mackie, 37, star as longtime friends determined to share one last crazy Christmas Eve in New York City (think illicit substances and bathroom hookups). The trio sat down with Us' Alli Rosenbloom at the Four Seasons in Beverly Hills for a raucous chat.

Are holidays wild at your house?

SR My family told me that Jews didn't celebrate Thanksgiving in Canada. And then I grew up and met Jews from Canada who did universally celebrate it. So my parents just deprived me of holidays.

JGL I play the most dedicated Christmas observer in this movie, but personally, I am a Jew. We have a family Hanukkah party every year where we get together at the park [in L.A.] and make latkes.

AM Is that the bread?

SR No, latkes are little potato pancakes. They're dope.

JGL We bring the batter in a big pot, and cook them on a propane stove. Then we eat them with applesauce and sour cream and play baseball.

AM We do black s--t. We ain't got no latkes! I basically just invite everybody over in New Orleans. We make some gumbo, bring the grill out and charbroil some oysters. It's mostly just people eating gumbo and drinking. That's our holidays.

Do you have a favorite memory of an epic night?

JGL I remember a quintessential New York night. The World Trade Center towers might have still been there. At the time, I was going to school at Columbia University and living in Harlem. . . .

AM That explains why you're such a soulful brother. You're from Harlem!

JGL I wouldn't say I'm from there. I lived there for about two years. Anyway, my brother and I walked from the very bottom of Manhattan all the way up to my apartment. It was probably close to sunrise by the time we got home, but I loved it.

FROM TOP: ART STREIBER; ACE/INFPHOTO.COM

"I couldn't keep it together," Rogen (center) says of filming the R-rated comedy.

One guy texts nude pics in the movie. Is that a do or a don't?

SR I don't think women get anything sexual out of it. It's more of a conversation piece for them. I think for men it's sexual and for women it's like, "Hey, look at this d--k!"
AM Right. If a chick sends you a nudie, it's like, "Oh, s--t! Where you at?"
SR And girls are just giggling and showing their friends.

You karaoke to Run-DMC in the film. What's your go-to song?

AM My brothers and I do Solo's "Where Do You Want Me to Put It?"
SR See, you shouldn't have a go-to. That's kind of cheating, right?
JGL It's a little bit cheating. But I do have go-to songs, and I pretend like they're not go-tos. I'm like, "Oh, look! They have 'Purple Rain'!"
SR You did "Man in the Mirror" one time when I was with you.
JGL And I'll be perfectly honest: That wasn't the first time I've done it.

Any antics from Miley Cyrus, who cameos?

SR She's cool and professional. She sang "Wrecking Ball," like, 30 times. Every time she killed it.
AM I did this movie to meet Miley, and I had that day off! I was like, "When is Miley coming?" And they were like, "Oh, she was here yesterday."
JGL And the next day you were like, "Did Miley ask about me?"

Cyrus

Michael Shannon plays your Christmas angel. Who would be your dream guardian?

AM James Brown or Mr. T.
JGL David Bowie.
SR Bob Marley. I'd like him to tell me every little thing's gonna be all right. US

The two spruced up the 2,800-square-foot home's deck with reclaimed wood.

Jonathan and Drew Scott had a helluva wild ride renovating the Canadian homestead of two rodeo-loving family friends. "It was a massive job," says Drew, 37, who partnered with his twin (as always) to transform the Longview, Alberta, ranch of Tom and Rosemary Bews for HGTV's four-part Property Brothers: At Home on the Ranch (November 25, 9 P.M.). Over 10 weeks, the Scotts tangled with Mother Nature (hail, woodpeckers), a ballooning budget (final cost: around $350,000) and stubborn clients. "They originally said no to my entire color palette!" says Jonathan. "I said, 'Trust me.' Taupe everything is so 2000." The gregarious duo (Taylor Swift and Hillary Clinton are fans) recently gave Us the first look at their handiwork on the 2,500-acre property east of the Canadian Rockies — near where they grew up. Property Brothers Jonathan and Drew Scott saddle up for their most ambitious HGTV project ever

Color in the Kitchen

"Too much wood is overkill," says Jonathan. So long, pine cabinets! (Besides, notes Drew, "they were cheap.") The updated kitchen, with its warm gray tones and blue accents, "still has a country charm," says Drew, "but we made it more functional." Indeed, new ceiling-height cabinets provide much-needed storage, and recessed bulbs brighten up the room. The bigger island — with granite countertops and a built-in cooktop — seats five. Another bonus: Jonathan moved the washer and dryer from the basement to a small suite he created right off the kitchen, saying, "Rosemary hated taking her laundry all the way down."

A Better-Flow Bedroom

The long, narrow master suite "was like a bowling alley," says Jonathan. To open up the cluttered space, the Scotts took down a wall, moving the walk-in closet to the adjacent bathroom. A new wall-mounted headboard anchors the king-size bed and serves as a focal point. "It balances the room," explains Jonathan, who crafted the piece and framed it with an alder wood that matches the sliding barn door. That rustic entryway to the updated bathroom helps preserve a traditional feel. Explains Drew, "We have to keep a certain character and elements you'd see on a ranch."

HIJINKS ON THE RANGE!

Jonathan (right) admits he and Drew "haven't roped since we were kids."

The stable's buckin' barrel ride "is not safe!" says Jonathan.

Locked out! Us' Andersson retrieved keys on his Sept. 17 visit.

Living-Room View Redo

Though the homeowners insisted on keeping the room's hardwood floors and log wall, "I have definitely pulled Tom and Rosemary out of their comfort zone," boasts Jonathan. He convinced them to let him paint the pine ceiling a soft white for a more contemporary look and install a bigger window to take advantage of the mountains in the distance. "The view is a big part of the living room. No one has what they have," he says. "But you had to be sitting down on a low couch to see it." Decluttering ("They had knickknacks and memorabilia everywhere," says Drew) adds to the open and clean feel.

DIY SECRETS

Feel like making a change? The brothers offer a few low-cost tips to make over your space.

LUXE IT UP
To give the illusion of detailed woodwork on a wall, "create boxes using small decorative trim," says Jonathan. Nail in place and paint.

FILL IN THE BLANKS
"If you have a blank wall, frame out a nice piece of wallpaper," says Drew, "something that has a geometric pattern or a nice pop of color that ties into your palette."

GO BOLD
"Every room should have a feature that draws the eye," says Jonathan. For example, homeowners with fireplaces can swap out a plain mantel for "something that makes a statement," he says. "Sometimes I'll get a chunky old log."

BRIE'S BIG BREAKOUT

Larson leaps from sidekick to Oscar darling

Brie Larson's Room glam team had it easy. "My beauty routine was: Don't wash your face and don't wash your hair," says the 26-year-old of playing Ma, a woman held captive for seven years, in the stirring indie drama (out now). Her raw performance has propelled the costar of Trainwreck (she played Amy Schumer's sister!) to the forefront of the best actress Oscar race. Marvels Larson, "It's one of those roles of a lifetime." The California native, who dates musician Alex Greenwald, talks to Us.

Q: What was your biggest challenge while filming Room?
I live in L.A., and because there was no sunlight in Room, I had to keep out of the sun for the whole summer. A big hat, and Adidas track pants and a jacket — that was my uniform for three months!

Q: Your onscreen son, Jacob Tremblay, is only 9! How did you two bond?
We had three weeks to hang out before shooting, so we built the toys that are in Room, drew pictures and played Legos.

Q: You're friends with actresses such as Amy Schumer and Shailene Woodley. What do you admire about them?
Surrounding myself with women of different backgrounds has become so valuable to me. It's really powerful.

Q: Ready for the Oscar madness?
To me, the buzz means that perhaps more people will go see the movie, and that's beautiful.

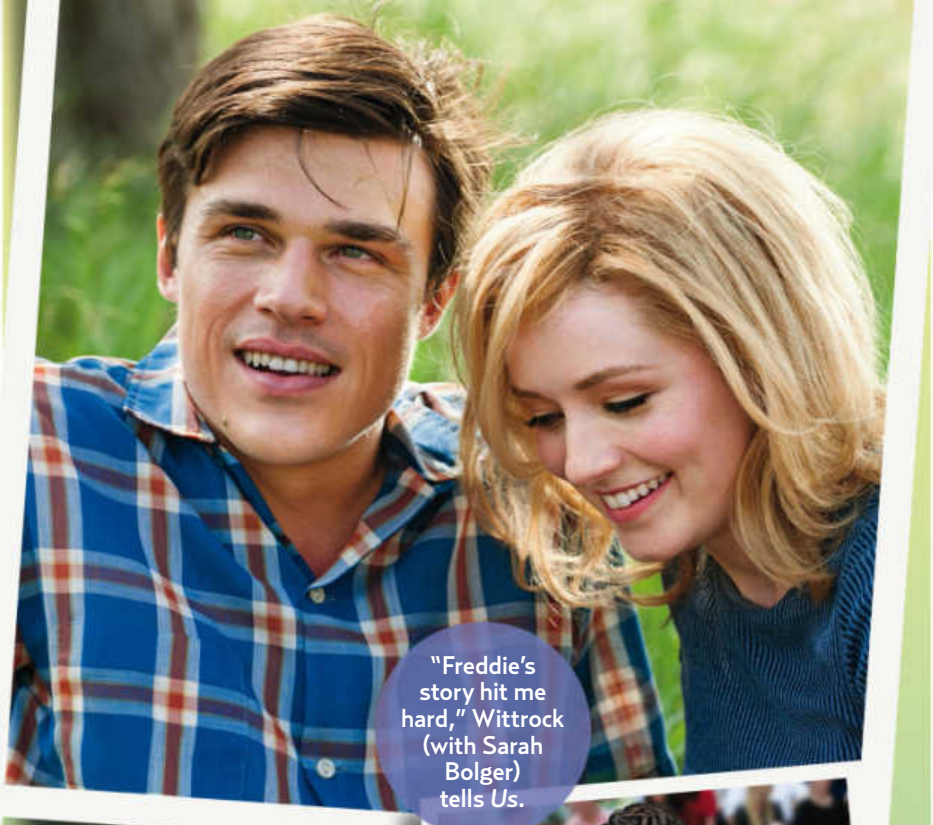

Costar Tremblay "has such a beautiful perspective," Larson says.

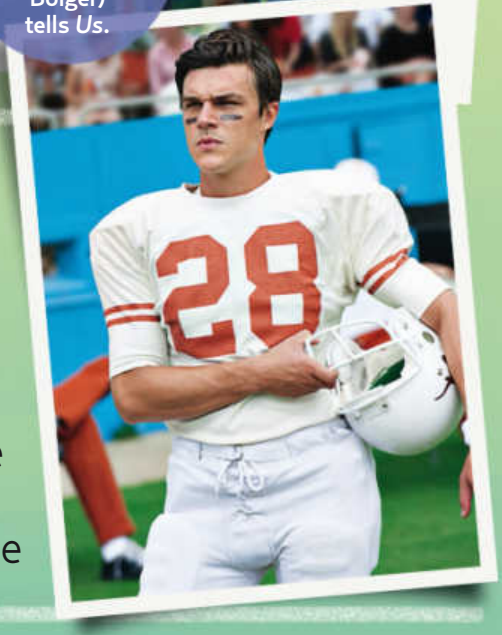

Larson calls Emma Donoghue's novel, on which the film is based, "hauntingly memorable."

"Freddie's story hit me hard," Wittrock (with Sarah Bolger) tells Us.

FINN GETTING PHYSICAL

Wittrock admits he got pushed around filming his new movie

Finn Wittrock knew he couldn't fumble his latest role. "I met some University of Texas players and they were like, 'You better not screw this up!'" says the star of playing the Longhorns' scrappy defensive back Freddie Steinmark in the 1969-set biopic My All American (in theaters now). Indeed, while prepping for the part, Wittrock felt the pressure — literally. "I went to a football boot camp in Austin and I've never been more sore," the 5-foot-11 American Horror Story: Hotel actor tells Us. "The other guys were twice as big. . . . They destroyed me!"

TIGHT END Fans of the FX series (he plays a model turned bloodsucker!) are familiar with what's underneath the 31-year-old's football uniform. "I was at a diner and a waitress showed me that she had a picture of my butt on her phone," says Wittrock, wed to fellow Juilliard grad Sarah Roberts. "I was all, 'Keep it to yourself, lady. I know what it looks like!'"

Banish food FOMO! Ashley Benson uses the free app to order off the secret menus while dining at restaurants in 16 cities, from NYC's Bar Primi to Boston's Coppa. (itunes.com)

JAKE LACY'S FULL PLATE

The actor dishes about pulling his weight on (and off!) the screen

For two months, Jake Lacy begged for second helpings. Filming Christmas dinner scenes for the comedy Love the Coopers (out now), the actor, 29, tells Us, "I was like, 'Can you please pass me a roll?' and then I'd be like, 'Butter! Butter for the bread!'" Ten pounds later, he and costars Diane Keaton, John Goodman and Olivia Wilde "swore off eating stuffing and turkey for a good two years," jokes Lacy, whose character is coerced into playing Wilde's fake boyfriend. "I bet there's a scene where I look heavier than when I started."

CUT IT OUT He's no stranger to, er, accidentally changing his look. In the middle of shooting a Girls episode — he plays Lena Dunham's coworker turned sweetheart — "I blanked and got a huge haircut," recalls the married Massachusetts native. "The hair people worked wonders and put tiny extensions in my hair. I felt like a dog with his tail between his legs!"

BLAZE AND THE MONSTER MACHINES

The problem-solving truck and his kid BFF hit prime time! Mayim Bialik, 39, who guests as a sphinx they meet in the desert, lauds the math-and-science-savvy show's "healthy dose of smarts." (Ages 3 and up, Nickelodeon, November 23 at 7 P.M.)

NATURE CAT

Saturday Night Live's Bobby Moynihan, 38, compares his overcurious puppy Hal to "the hyper kid who won't stop!" His journeys with the titular adventurer (voiced by Taran Killam) encourage outdoor exploration. (Ages 3–8, PBS Kids, November 25, check local listings)

IT'S YOUR 50TH CHRISTMAS, CHARLIE BROWN

Before the Peanuts classic airs, this retrospective marks its anniversary with songs from Kristin Chenoweth and others. Says "thrilled" host Kristen Bell, 35: "I grew up watching A Charlie Brown Christmas!" (All ages, ABC, November 30 at 8 P.M.)

Calm Holiday Stress!

Star-trusted experts (Jennifer Aniston's yoga guru, George Clooney's chef) share strategies

Miranda Kerr's chest-opening king dancer pose "elevates your mood," promises her yoga instructor Charlotte Dodson.

The Behavioral Expert Says . . .

Revisit the Past

Reminiscing releases "happy-feeling endorphins," says Science of People founder Vanessa Van Edwards, who researches human nature and conducts public-speaking workshops. "Pull up your Instagram or Facebook and look at old photos."

Venture a Conversation

Alone at a party? Find a group standing with their feet angled out. "It's an unconscious thing our brain does to signal 'I'm open and ready to mingle.'"

The Yoga Instructor Says . . .

STRETCH IT OUT

Any folding posture calms the nervous system, says Jennifer Aniston's L.A. pro Mandy Ingber. While seated on the floor, extend legs outward. Inhale and lengthen the spine. Exhale, fold over and hold for 10 breaths.

OPEN WIDE

The Yogalosophy author swears by the My Personal Assistant floral essence blend, billed to help combat "dread of work." Says Ingber, "A few drops under your tongue several times a day or in water will do wonders." ($30, alexissmart.com)

KENNETH WILLARDT/TRUNKARCHIVE. STILL LIFE: SHUTTERSTOCK (10). COLOGNE: N/C

The Fragrance Experts Say . . .

STICK WITH CINNAMON

Spicy candles evoke "comfort and warmth," says French perfumer Frederic Malle. Finicky guests, however, should get special treatment: He suggests a "clean" scent like his magnolia-tinged Jurassic Flower "to play it safe." ($85, fredericmalle.com)

SPRITZ SMARTLY

For Atelier Cologne cofounder Sylvie Ganter, neroli, distilled from orange blossoms, "is the most calming aroma," she says. "It takes you back to your childhood, almost like a cocooning feeling." ($110 for 3.3 fluid ounces, sephora.com)

The Personal Chef Says . . .

FEED YOUR SOUL

At the first panic-inducing pangs of a cold, sip chicken-bone broth. It's rich in the amino acid cysteine, which "helps thin mucus," says George Clooney's former L.A. chef Sophie Jaffe. For an immune system boost, mix in a spoonful of Philosophie's spirulina powder, which is packed with vitamin B12 and zinc to stave off fatigue. ($8, thephilosophie.com)

SAVE FACE

Stress-exacerbated breakouts can be tempered with green tea. The leaves, explains Jaffe, contain a powerful phytochemical that "reduces sebum levels and inflammation."

The Meditation Guru Says . . .

Hit Pause

The antidote to toxic people: "Access your inner pause button," says Suze Yalof Schwartz, founder of L.A.'s Unplug Meditation. "If someone works my nerves, I pause, breathe in for five minutes, hold for five and exhale for five. Then I press play and skip overreacting."

Harden Your Heart

When bombarded by stimulants, "visualize that you are wearing invisible armor," she says. "Nothing anyone can say actually gets in."

The Massage Therapist Says . . .

Knead Knots

Rachel Weishaupt, a masseuse who makes house calls via Soothe.com, suggests a DIY trigger point therapy: Trap a tennis ball between the affected area and the floor and apply gentle pressure for 30 seconds. "It looks silly," she warns, "but the results are well worth it!"

Ease the Pain

No matter what ails you, Weishaupt recommends a 20-minute Epsom salt soak. The magnesium and sulfate mix, she notes, "works to draw out toxins associated with stress hormone production."

The Hunger Games: Mockingjay — Part 2

Jennifer Lawrence can't quite hit the bull's-eye in the unfulfilling last chapter

★★½☆

In less than four years, Katniss Everdeen has gone from Girl on Fire to Girl Who Must Seize Control of the Government Before the Districts Flame Out. It's a much less catchy hook — and her final hurrah suffers for it. The action picks up right after Part 1, with our favorite arrow-slinger (Jennifer Lawrence) in rebellion mode. She's set on storming the Capitol and assassinating übercontrolling President Snow (Donald Sutherland). Helping her on the mission: useless-as-ever Gale (Liam Hemsworth) and the mentally ailing Peeta (Josh Hutcherson). Though the group's journey through Panem is packed with lethal obstacles, the thrills are meh — especially compared with the frights in the Hunger Games. It all builds to a dramatic climax that comes off as too disjointed on screen. Given Lawrence's fearless acting talents, it's a shame she's cheated out of fully experiencing a few key events in the third act. (At least said events are faithful to the source material.) Even ardent fans can admit that Mockingjay, the bleakest and weakest entry in the book trilogy, never should have been split into two films. But Katniss is a classic heroine who transcends the darkness. The odds will always be in her favor, as well they should be.

The guys sing karaoke to a Run-DMC classic.

The Night Before

From the looks of it, Joseph Gordon-Levitt, Seth Rogen and Anthony Mackie had a riot filming their comedy. Too bad they didn't spread that holiday cheer to everybody else. They play high school pals who made a pact long ago to spend December 24 together. Now all grown-up, they embark on one last blowout. Spoiler: It ain't no silent night. As per the Rogen credo, the antics include smoking pot, tripping out, partying with celebs (Miley Cyrus is a showstopper) and worming out of misunderstandings. Alas, only a handful of hearty laughs land. With respect to the guys' charm, they could have used a story that wasn't half-baked.

Blanchett "accidentally" leaves her gloves at the counter.

★★★½

They lock eyes across a crowded department store. Within an instant, they're smitten. But for two women in the 1950s, a romance is forbidden. This is the premise of an artfully crafted drama, which features stirring performances from Cate Blanchett (as sophisticated housewife Carol) and Rooney Mara (as shy Therese). At first, the pair repress their feelings. The tension builds until they fall into each other's arms. Director Todd Haynes stages the characters' fraught journey with an elegant touch; the deliberately leisurely pace leads to a hard-earned payoff. The two stars shape this love story, though. Through Carol and Therese's most trying moments, their deep connection cuts through the heart.

Eric Church

Mr. Misunderstood

★★★½

Take Us to Church! Dialing back on the bombast and eccentricities of last year's The Outsiders, Eric Church shines a light on his expert songcraft in this surprise 10-cut set. Highest praise goes to the Southern rocker "Mistress Named Music" and tuneful "Record Year," in which he rhapsodizes about how great albums got him through dark days. This one's for everyone else.

KELSEA'S TOP AMA TRACKS!

Ballerini, 22, picks cuts from fellow nominees at the American Music Awards (ABC, November 22, 8 P.M.)

WHERE ARE Ü NOW / JACK Ü WITH JUSTIN BIEBER

"Not gonna lie . . . I missed the Biebs! He's winning with his new sound."

TIMEBOMB / TOVE LO

"This is the song I sooo wish I had written. I am obsessed with her."

GIRL CRUSH / LITTLE BIG TOWN

"Hands down the best country song out. Made me stop in my tracks."

RELAPSE / CARRIE UNDERWOOD

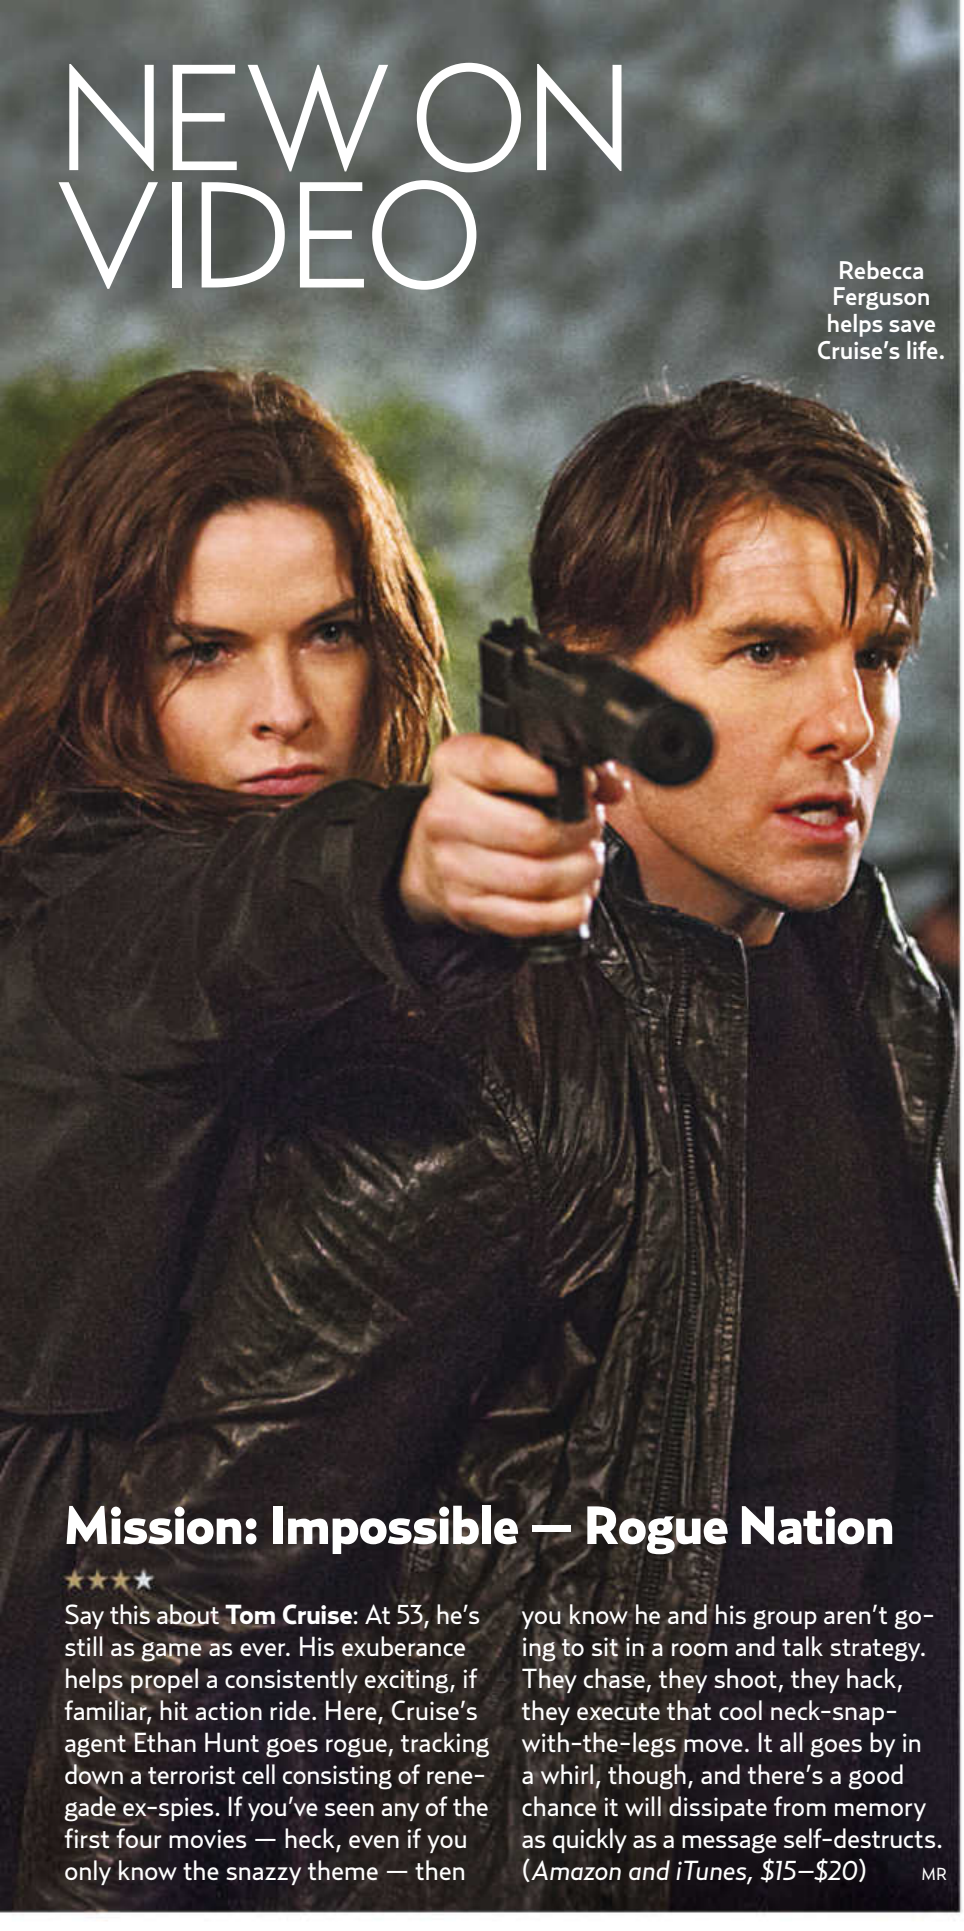

"It has such a dark, cool groove — and she sings it like she means it."

CLEAN / TAYLOR SWIFT

"It reminds me of her first CD. Everyone knows I love me some T. Swift!"

Rebecca Ferguson helps save Cruise's life.

Mission: Impossible — Rogue Nation

Say this about Tom Cruise: At 53, he's still as game as ever. His exuberance helps propel a consistently exciting, if familiar, hit action ride. Here, Cruise's agent Ethan Hunt goes rogue, tracking down a terrorist cell consisting of renegade ex-spies. If you've seen any of the first four movies — heck, even if you only know the snazzy theme — then you know he and his group aren't going to sit in a room and talk strategy. They chase, they shoot, they hack, they execute that cool neck-snap-with-the-legs move. It all goes by in a whirl, though, and there's a good chance it will dissipate from memory as quickly as a message self-destructs. (Amazon and iTunes, $15–$20) MR

THURSDAY 11/26

RAILROAD ALASKA: REAL TIME TRAIN RIDE

Next stop: Talkeetna!

Trip-tophan! Cameras mounted on a train document 500 miles of Alaskan wilderness. That's five hours. In real time. For the good ol' crackling fireplace instead, try Netflix, Amazon Prime, iTunes or Hulu. (Destination America, 9 A.M.)

THURSDAY 11/26

THE SIMPSONS

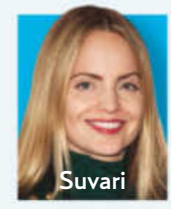

Homer

Think your family is nuts? Bart goes AWOL on Thanksgiving! Marge sends Homer packing on Christmas! Twelve straight holiday episodes of the animated hit are steeped in funny dysfunction. (FXX, 4 P.M.)

FRIDAY 11/27

SOUTH OF HELL

Suvari

Black Friday indeed. In this schlocky new drama, a sexy exorcist-for-hire (Mena Suvari) purges possessed souls. First up in a marathon of all seven episodes: a face-eating little boy! (WeTV, 6 P.M.)
